MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR:

It has been a sincere pleasure serving as the 2009 Chair of the Section on Children and the Law, whose aim is to promote the exploration of a range of legal issues through the unique lens of children, providing a forum for rich discussion of children's legal, social, educational, physical, and intellectual needs, among others. As we move forward into our third year of programming, we are looking forward to seeing many of our Section members at the upcoming AALS annual meeting. This year we are honored to be hosting an extended program scheduled for Thursday, January 7, 2010 from 9:00am to 5:00pm, Rosedown Room, Hilton New Orleans Riverside, on “Meeting the Needs of Children in Crisis: Hurricane Katrina and Beyond. Please make every effort to join us and to encourage others to attend as well. Our keynote speaker, panel programs, and documentary film screening, which are described later in the newsletter, promise to be both engaging and informative.

Having hosted two other very well received programs at prior AALS annual meetings in 2008 and 2009, we are excited in 2010 to be submitting our application for full status within the AALS. It is truly hard to believe that this is already our third year of programming, and the last one which will be counted as part of our application for full status. We will, of course, keep all Section members apprised of our progress.

We are continuing to add to our e-mail distribution list which has served as a useful forum for the distribution of news regarding recent scholarship, conferences, emerging legal issues. If you are not already a member of the list, and wish to join, you can do so by completing the subscription form at:

<http://lists.ubalt.edu/mailman/listinfo/aalschildlaw>.

Lastly, although my term as Chair is now at an end, I look forward to participating in the further development and continued growth of our Section. I am excited to pass the baton to Chair-Elect, Shaun Shaughnessy, who will serve as Chair for the 2010-2011 term and confident that the Section will continue to blossom under Shaun's direction.

Looking forward to seeing you in New Orleans!

Warmly,

Sacha M. Coupet,
Chair, Section on Children and the Law

Juvenile Justice: Passages, Prevention, and Intervention

Children and youth become involved with the juvenile justice system at a significant rate.
While some children move just as quickly out of the system and go on to live productive lives as adults, other children become enmeshed in the system, moving to deeper problems and even to the adult criminal justice system.

This conference is focused on (1) avoiding this connection, whether brief or deep, and (2) intervening in ways that most effectively prevent further involvement with the system, address children's issues, and foster children's success. We hope to identify good systems, models and/or legislation. We hope also to be a sounding board for ideas, as well as a connecting place for those who might enrich each other's perspectives or assist in outcomes if they work collaboratively.

Conference registration is now available.

NEW AND FORTHCOMING PUBLICATIONS:

“Healthy Beginnings, Healthy Futures: A Judge’s Guide”
ABA Center on Children and the Law

Research on early brain development highlights how crucial the early years are in the development of infants, toddlers, and preschoolers. This very young population is especially vulnerable to the effects of abuse and neglect that set the stage for their long-term health outcomes.

Produced in collaboration with the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges and the Zero to Three National Policy Center, this guide for judges addresses the wide array of health needs of very young children in the child welfare system. By sharing current research on physical health, child development, attachment, infant mental health, and early care and education, the authors provide tools and strategies to help judges promote better outcomes for babies, toddlers, and preschoolers who enter their courtrooms. Available online for purchase from the ABA Center's website: www.abanet.org/child/

“A Child's Right to Counsel: A National Report Card on Legal Representation for Abused & Neglected Children,” Second Edition

First Star & the Children's Advocacy Institute at the University of San Diego

The national report surveys how each state performs in providing effective legal representation to maltreated children within the framework of its state law. The survey reflects the —law on the books, but does not purport to measure policy and practices, which may allow for more responsible representation, or may avoid what applicable law requires. By looking at the stated law and adopted statewide rules, the authors chose a variable that is measurable between states, and one of particular import. While policies may be changed on a whim, practices encoded in statute and regulation are predictable, enforceable, and long-lived. The report, which focuses on dependency proceedings, but can be extended to all legal proceedings in which a child's future is being determined, facilitates making useful comparisons between those jurisdictions regarded as having commendable practices and those less reflective of best practices within child advocacy.

MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY/TREASURER,
BILL PATTON:

I want to make this newsletter as responsive as possible to your needs, and I want to publicize our members' accomplishment, including publications, amicus curiae briefs, legislative analyses, presentations, expert consultations, awards, and anything else that you think would be of interest to those working in the many fields related to the legal representation of children and families. Please send your ideas to bpattton@law.whittier.edu. In addition, I thought that it would be interesting to choose an historical child related photograph for each newsletter to provide my final thoughts. The first photograph appears on the next page:

This is a photograph from the Farm Security Administration (FSA) migrant labor camp during the pea harvest. This family of eleven children came from Oklahoma. Brawley, Imperial County, California (1939).
